DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
Situated in mid-block, this flat-roofed carriage house is two stories high and three bays wide; the surface is of running-bond brick. On the ground floor, the left bay is filled by a coupled window, each half being double-hung with one-over-one light; the pair is surrounded by an arched brick lintel above and a stone sill below. The right bay is similar, but the lower light of the right window has been extended into a rectangular door, the upper light becoming a flat transom. In the center, a garage door with hinged wooden shutters above is capped by an arched brick lintel. The second story windows are proportionately scaled models of the ground floor units, one pair to each bay. Unlike the first floor, however, each pair here is recessed in a brick panel surrounding the unit. There is a brick cornice supported by four brick brackets atop the building.
